

Typical American Foreign Policy 101

International political observers report that Mexico's 2005 election was hijacked to the right with the assistance of the United States in a very similar way that GW's brother Jeb orchestrated the ballot box "win" in Florida. The US must be seriously concerned with leftist's who promote a new system of social inclusion and a fresh look at NAFTA and the fact it has brought very little economic change to the masses and in fact has basically turned Mexico into a source of destitute, cheap labour and an industrial dumping ground by both Canada and the USA.

The US seems to be getting very antsy about what is going on in Venezuela and other countries now under the influence of Cuba. I see that John Negroponte, the new tzar of the US Intelligence is betting on CIA veteran Patrick Maher, the new "mission manager" for Cuba and Venezuela, for the task of co-ordinating espionage efforts against the two countries. The CIA is of course financially and operationally responsible for the escape of Carlos Ortega and three other operatives from Venezuelan jail. This American led operation was identical to the one which helped international terrorist Luis Possada Carriles, the man convicted of the sabotage of a Cubana Aviation plane carrying 73 passengers to Carracas, which was blown up over Barbados.

Carriles who then entered the US illegally from Mexico is being held by US authorities. Canada, Mexico, Honduras, Costa Rica, Guatemala, El Salvador and Panama, so far have refused a United States request to receive him. I'd imagine Libya will.
